2 Hair loss

Hair loss, medically known as alopecia, is the partial or complete absence of hair from areas of the body where it normally grows—most commonly the scalp. It can be diffuse (generalized thinning), focal (patchy loss), or patterned.

Types:

- Androgenic Alopecia: Gradual thinning due to hormones and genetics.
- Traction Alopecia: Hair loss from prolonged tension on follicles.
- Telogen Effluvium: Temporary shedding after stress, illness, or diet changes.

Recommended products:

1- Topical application:

- Androgenic Alopecia:

1. 5 alpha- reductase inhibitor as Saw palmetto, Rosemarry oil and Capixyl.
2. Minoxidil.

- Traction Alopecia: Anchoring protein enhancer as Procapil
- Telogen Effluvium: Blood circulation enhancer as Ginkgo biloba, Ginseng and Caffeine.

2- Oral supplements:

Support hair follicle health by correcting deficiencies (e.g., iron, biotin, zinc, B-complex).
